Breastfeeding children is a super power

The evidence is clear: Breastfeeding makes children and their mothers healthier and stronger.

It boosts a baby’s immune system, providing protection from illness and infection. It guards against childhood obesity and diabetes. It gives breast-fed babies a solid foundation for lifelong health and wellness. It reduces a woman’s chance of breast and ovarian cancer and protects against postpartum depression.

Pediatricians, healthcare experts, and millions of mothers all agree: Breastfeeding is a true super power.

Women have the amazing ability to give their baby the very best start in life by breastfeeding, and in a perfect world, all mothers and babies would reap the benefits of breastfeeding. But breastfeeding isn’t always easy and sometimes a struggling mom needs a little help to be successful.

Mothers with breastfeeding challenges don’t have to go it alone. The Mid-Michigan District Health Department (MMDHD) and its Breastfeeding Peer Counselors are committed to reducing infant mortality and increasing the health of mothers and babies. The Breastfeeding Peer Counselor program, which is offered to mothers enrolled in Women, Infants, and Children (WIC) offers:

Support and encouragement to moms about to deliver, to those who have just delivered, and to those going back to work.

Prenatal breastfeeding classes

Education to pregnant women and mothers as their baby grows. According to Andrea Tabor, MMDHD community health and education division director, “Helping mothers overcome breastfeeding challenges increases the number of babies who are fed this ‘super milk’ and increases the likelihood that the mother will stick with it long-term.”

Mothers enrolled in WIC and interested in receiving breastfeeding assistance should contact one of MMDHD’s Breastfeeding Peer Counselors at (989) 831-3625 in Montcalm County.

Educating families before babies are born and providing consistent, accessible support through the first year of life and beyond are keys to helping moms reach their breastfeeding goals.

Women, Infants and Children (WIC) program is a federal-funded program that serves low and moderate income pregnant, breastfeeding, and postpartum women, infants and children (younger than age 5) who have nutrition-related health problems.
