Talk Early & Talk Often is a nationally recognized parent workshop aimed at helping parents of middle and high school youth talk with their children about their sexuality; how to develop respectful relationships and make informed choices.

The workshop helps parents recognize and use opportunities to open the door for conversation, listen and respond with greater confidence and skill and to feel comfortable seeking outside sources of information.

This state sponsored initiative was developed with support from several state agencies working in the area of teen pregnancy prevention. Since its roll out in 2005, Talk Early & Talk Often has received high praise from parents.

Dinner will be provided and child care is available. The workshops are FREE; however, space is limited. Please register to reserve a spot by calling Health Line toll-free at (800) 999-3199.

Health Fact

According to the National Campaign to Prevent Teen Pregnancy, age-appropriate conversations about relationships and intimacy should begin early in a child's life and continue through adolescence. Resist "the talk" – make it an 18-year conversation.
